Panhandle of Early Days Complete in Detail; Art Work By Miss Isabel Robinson.

A contribution of distinct historical and artistic significance has just been made to the Panhandle through the pictorial map of the Panhandle before 1890 which has just been completed by Miss Isabel Robinson, head of the art department of the West Texas State Teachers College. The map plates have been made of the map and it will be printed in large numbers, so that it will be available to people who are interested at a very reasonable price.

The prints are seventeen by twenty-two inches, printed in colors with shades of brown, blue, red, tan and blue purple, colors which are found in the Panhandle landscape predominating.

Everything which appears on the map is representative of the Panhandle region previous to 1890. In order that the map might be accurate in every detail, Mr. J. Everett Haley, field secretary of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society, assisted in the placing of the brands which show the location of the old ranches, such as the Good-night ranch, the T-Ancor, the Matador, the XIT and others that were well known then.

Miss Darthula Walker, head of the Geography department of the College assisted in placing the streams, canyons and rivers so that the representation would be exactly correct.

Miss Hattie M. Anderson, formerly secretary of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society and member of the History department of the College made many suggestions concerning the map, and together with Miss Walker and Mr. Haley the first draft for Miss Robinson.

Other points of interest which appear on the map are the towns which had been established at this time, including Old Clarendon, Tascosa, Washburn, Amarillo, Canyon, Higgins, Canadian, and a few others. It is noted that Amarillo was a mere village in 1890.

McKenzie killing 1400 horses in order that Indian raids might be stopped; a buffalo hunt; cowboys, cattle, lobos, Buffalo Wallow and Adobe Walls battle grounds, a prairie schooner, Fort Elliott and other very distinguished figures appear on the map.

Trails which were commonly used before 1890 and the old trail which (Continued on last page)

Randall County Cow Making Good on Test

Among the Jersey cows in Randall county now on the official test of the American Jersey Cattle Club for the Register of Merit, is Plymouth Lad's Baby Joy 636779. She is one of the young cows in the small, but select herd of registered Jerseys, belonging to J. W. Miller, who lives 12 miles southeast of Canyon.

Plymouth Lad's Baby Joy has been on the official test for the Register of Merit for some four months. During that time she has produced, on an average, two pounds of butterfat per day.

In such cows as this one, is the way pointed clear, for real farm relief for Randall county farmers. Not only is this county, but the entire Panhandle-Plains country coming more and more to realize the stability to be found in good dairy herds.

Baptists Will Occupy New Auditorium

Sunday, January 5 has been set by members of the First Baptist Church as the time when they will hold services in the auditorium of the new church building for the first time.

It is hoped that the pipe organ, which was donated by the Amarillo First Baptist church will be installed by that time. The old building of the Baptists at Amarillo has been purchased by business interests there and work of demolishing the building will begin by Jan. 1. The services of an expert pipe organ man has been secured for the installation of the organ.

Besides the pipe organ the Amarillo church also donated an electric chandelier to the local church. This additional donation is valued at $500.

STUDENT LOANS ARE DISCUSSED BY PRES. HILL

NEED OF NEW BUILDINGS IS FULLY RECOGNIZED.

Interest in Aiding Students Who Need Financial Assistance Is Growing Asserts Pres. Hill.

In reviewing the assistance which the students of the West Texas State Teachers College have received through gifts and loans and scholarships coming from citizens of Texas during the past year, President J. A. Hill said, "We have never had so many evidences of intelligent interest in and helpfulness to the States' young people as has been shown during the past year." President Hill was referring to the new funds which have been provided to assist worthy students to reach a point in their educational careers where they can be self-supporting and go forward professionally.

"During 1929 nearly $2400 has been added to the loan fund scholarship funds of the college; this means that at least twenty-five worthy students will receive help who would otherwise have had to discontinue their college work, for students seldom borrow as much as $100 during a single session. $1000 of this amount came from a citizen of Canyon; $500 more came from a successful lawyer of Houston who has long been interested in the Canyon College and makes frequent donations to the loan funds. Both these men prefer to remain anonymous givers."

"People who have acquired wealth are coming to consider it a public trust," said President Hill, "and they are turning to state colleges as proper places to make gifts and bequests, because there is a permanence about these institutions which assures the giver that his gift will not be lost to the purpose for which it was designed." During 1926, gifts and bequests to Teachers Colleges of the U. S. amounted to $8,728,950, or nearly five times the amount given just two years before.

"Texas is a new state, and in Northwest Texas, particularly, wealth has just begun to accumulate," said President Hill. "And because of the rapid growth of the college at Canyon, and of the region that surrounds it, there is ample opportunity for men and women of wealth to invest money which will give them pleasure as long as they live, and be a blessing to the land they have loved long after they have passed away."

When asked what were some of the needs which might be supplied (Continued on last page)

Water Used in City Exceeds 55 Million Gallons

Canyon has used 53,471,000 gallons of water for the eleven months of the year that have already passed. The December consumption will be approximately the same as that for January, bringing the total to 56,736,000 for the year.

Canyon's water supply comes from deep wells which furnish water which is soft. The rate is $1.50 for the first 2,000 gallons, then fifty cents per thousand up to 10,000 gallons, then thirty-five cents per thousand. In addition to this graduated rate, a ten percent discount is allowed on all accounts paid before the tenth of the month.

The city commission believes that the graduated rate encourages the care of lawns, flowers and trees, and it will be continued during the next year.

MILLER-LYBRAND WINS FIRST BUSINESS HOUSE; MRS. C. M. DOWLEN FIRST IN RESIDENCE

Christmas Decoration Contest Comes to Close Monday Night; Judges Highly Praise Canyon for Co-Operative Spirit Shown in Christmas Campaign.

The Christmas decorations contest came to a close in Canyon Monday night, when the judges made their report to W. A. Warren, president of the Chamber of Commerce. Miller-Lybrand Company was awarded first place for the most effectively decorated business houses, and Mrs. C. M. Dowlen was awarded first place in the residence contest.

Mason King of Amarillo, T. E. Seigler of Hereford and Bill Hemmree of Plainview were the judges.

Originality, simplicity and effectiveness were the points upon which the judges based their decision. The judges visited the business houses four times and the residences three times before coming to a decision.

In speaking for the judges, Mr. King stated that as a whole Canyon far surpassed any town on the Plains in the effectiveness of the Christmas decorations. It is true that Amarillo has very fine decorations in many places, but there has not been the wide response as the judge found in Canyon.

There were a few more elaborate decorations in Amarillo in the residential district, but Mr. King stated that Canyon has many residences decorated as effectively as any in Amarillo.

Mr. Seigler is president of the Hereford Chamber of Commerce and was highly impressed with the first year's experience in Canyon. He predicted that next year the contest would be much more effective than that carried on by the Chamber of Commerce this year.

The Chamber of Commerce urges that those who entered the contest and other citizens keep their decorations fully lighted Tuesday and Wednesday nights so that all citizens who have not driven over the city to see the decorations may be given this opportunity. A half hour's drive over the city will be worth the time to all citizens who have not been out and seen the wonderful decorations which have been put out this year by the citizens of Canyon.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS
The News wishes its readers a very Merry Christmas.

The people of Randall county have much to be thankful for at this season of the year.

This section has been listed as one of the most prosperous of the entire United States during the past several years.

Bountiful crops have been harvested during the past twelve months. The farmers have profited from the results of their labor. As a result of the good crops, thousands of dollars have been re-invested in home improvements, and in better machinery which will insure better crops during the coming years.

The outlook for 1930 is very promising. Therefore, our people are in a position, and in a frame of mind to thoroughly enjoy the Christmas holiday spirit.

May this be the Happiest Christmas ever experienced in this good county of Randall.

Governor Moody may be a candidate for the third term, according to political writers at Austin. This prediction is based upon the assurance that prison reform will fall in the coming session of the legislature. For many months newspaper correspondents at Austin have felt that the Governor would be willing to seek a third term if the outlook was promising. It is predicted that the penitentiary problem will be so muddled that the Governor will veto any bill which may be passed, and that he will carry the fight to the people.

Randall county citizens should certainly arm themselves with a poll tax receipt for the coming year. State politics will be the hottest in years; local politics will start with a bang next week. When several candidates will announce for office. Get ready for the battle of ballots next July.

WHAT IS PROGRESS?

Progress might be defined as any activity which brings the greatest possible number of benefits to the greatest possible number of people.

In the light of this strict definition, twentieth-century America is undergoing the greatest period of real progress in world history.

The fact that this nation has developed the greatest industries and has the greatest potentialities for future achievement, makes it possible to provide a hundred million people with comforts, luxuries and conveniences beyond the wildest dreams of their forefathers. The railroad, automobile, good roads, telephone, electricity, radio, schools, libraries—products of an industrial civilization have made us an outstanding nation.

"Life is a heterogeneous collection of irreconcilable phenomena," says a scientist. Film producers have known this for years.—Punch.

CALENDARS

The movement to reform the calendar by making the year into thirteen months of 28 days each with an extra holiday thrown in between Christmas and New Year is making headway.

The principal objections are on religious grounds. There is nothing sacred about the calendar, but to change it would mean changing the date of Easter and some saints' days. The Pope must consent before the Catholic nations will accept those changes. Orthodox Jews object to the eight-day interval between Sabbaths once a year.

Sooner or later we shall have a new system of reckoning time, the third since Julius Caesar established the foundation of the present calendar in 48 B. C.

LEISURE

For the first time in history a nation is so prosperous that there is no serious problem of what to do for the poor. In the United States philanthropists and economists are considering instead how to help the high-paid wage-earners to get more genuine value out of the leisure which the shortened working day gives them.

George Eastman has given tens of millions to further musical education and the appreciation of good music. He says, rightly, that the man or woman who gets his highest pleasure from producing or listening to music is a much happier as well as a much more useful citizen than the one who does not know what to do with his spare time.

DRINK

Sir Phillip Gibbs, most capable of British journalists, reports that drinking is becoming unfashionable in good society in England and diminishing among the working class. England has no prohibition law. We had no national prohibition law in America before the war, yet it was noticeable that drinking was falling off everywhere. After prohibition was enacted it became fashionable to patronize bootleggers as a gesture of defiance.

Now these defiant ones are not getting the kick out of their attitude which they got at first, and drinking seems definitely on the wane again. Good society no longer looks tolerantly on drunkenness. Flunk-toting is rightly regarded as childish.

SHOES

A nationally-distributed brand of shoes sells for $4 a pair. The man at the head of the business failed in 1921. He started up again on the modern plan of quantity production, low overhead and high wages. His lowest-paid worker gets $5 a day, enough to buy a pair of the shoes he helps make and have a dollar left over.

A German shoe manufacturer visited this man's plant. The German makes a shoe which retails at 18 marks—$4.50. He pays his workmen six marks, $1.50 a day. A man has to work half a week to earn a pair of shoes.

"Our country and the rest of Europe will never get ahead until we learn that the workers must be our chief consumers, and must earn enough to buy the goods they make," said the German.

He had discovered the secret of American prosperity.

TITLES

Former members of the Russian nobility are scattered over the world. Some stand the test of poverty, many wilt under it, proving nothing except that people are much alike, titled or not.

In New York a grand duke or two live without working by selling "Imperial Orders" to gullible Americans. The buyer gets the right to wear a red ribbon across his shirt-front and pretend to be somebody. Harmless enough, but silly.

Much more entitled to respect is a Russian princess who works in a fashionable dress shop in New York. Her title is genuine, she is beautiful, many men want to marry her. She prefers independence on $50 a week and complains about nothing except that her feet get pretty tired by 5 o'clock.

AN AIR MERCHANT MARINE

Air transportation offers America the opportunity to gain back the advantage lost by our failure to develop a great merchant marine, in the opinion of Assistant Secretary of the Navy E. L. Jahncke.

He points out that commerce between nations is a basic factor in creating prosperity, and visions a great American air fleet, carrying goods to far countries. South America, Australia, Japan and other lands are but a few hours away by air. They represent untouched markets, open to American aviation genius.

Here is a dream that may become an actuality. A new field beckons American pioneers.

"It is said that no two objects in the universe are more than 54,000,000,000,000,000 miles apart. On these cold mornings when the rugs are at the cleaners and your slippers are missing, that's the distance between bed and bathtub.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

SMALL TOWN'S OPPORTUNITY

Aided by a comprehensive city building plan, the small community has a better opportunity for sane growth and healthful living than the metropolitan centers.

One of the main features of a "comprehensive plan" must be a street system that provides for future growth. In many small American cities and towns streets are narrow and poorly surfaced. Few of them can be used as through routes. Upkeep is costly and a continual drain on the city's finances.

The small town has the advantage of being able to correct deficiencies in its street system without exorbitant expense. By beginning now it can avoid pitfalls of traffic congestion that are an apparently insoluble problem in many of our great centers of population. By using low cost paving materials it can, at a reasonable figure, salvage old streets and secure maximum service from them at a minimum of upkeep expense.

The cities of the future are the small towns of today. They should begin now to provide for their development.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS

The News wishes its readers a very Merry Christmas.

The people of Randall county have much to be thankful for at this season of the year.

This section has been listed as one of the most prosperous of the entire United States during the past several years.

Bountiful crops have been harvested during the past twelve months. The farmers have profited from the results of their labor. As a result of the good crops, thousands of dollars have been re-invested in home improvements, and in better machinery which will insure better crops during the coming years.

The outlook for 1930 is very promising. Therefore, our people are in a position, and in a frame of mind to thoroughly enjoy the Christmas holiday spirit.

May this be the Happiest Christmas ever experienced in this good county of Randall.

Governor Moody may be a candidate for the third term, according to political writers at Austin. This prediction is based upon the assurance that prison reform will fail in the coming session of the legislature. For many months newspaper correspondents at Austin have felt that the Governor would be willing to seek a third term if the outlook was promising. It is predicted that the penitentiary problem will be so muddled that the Governor will veto any bill which may be passed, and that he will carry the fight to the people.

Randall county citizens should certainly arm themselves with a poll tax receipt for the coming year. State politics will be the hottest in years; local politics will start with a bang next week, when several candidates will announce for office. Get ready for the battle of ballots next July.

WHAT IS PROGRESS?

Progress might be defined as any activity which brings the greatest possible number of benefits to the greatest possible number of people.

In the light of this strict definition, twentieth-century America is undergoing the greatest period of real progress in world history.

The fact that this nation has developed the greatest industries and has the greatest potentialities for future achievement, makes it possible to provide a hundred million people with comforts, luxuries and conveniences beyond the wildest dreams of their fore-fathers. The railroad, automobile, good roads, telephone, electricity, radio, schools, libraries—products of an industrial civilization have made us an outstanding nation.

"Life is a heterogeneous collection of irreconcilable phenomena," says a scientist. Film producers have known this for years.—Punch.

The Choice of the Well-informed

It is only natural that discriminating buyers have a distaste for second-hand diamonds of a dubious past. How much more appealing is a Certified VIRGIN DIAMOND, direct from the mines to you. CALENDARS

The movement to reform the calendar by making the year into thirteen months of 28 days each with an extra holiday thrown in between Christmas and New Year is making headway.

The principal objections are on religious grounds. There is nothing sacred about the calendar, but to change it would mean changing the date of Easter and some saints' days. The Pope must consent before the Catholic nations will accept those changes. Orthodox Jews object to the eight-day interval between Sabbaths once a year.

Sooner or later we shall have a new system of reckoning time, the third since Julius Caesar established the foundation of the present calendar in 48 B. C.

LEISURE

For the first time in history a nation is so prosperous that there is no serious problem of what to do for the poor. In the United States philanthropists and economists are considering instead how to help the high-paid wage-earners to get more genuine value out of the leisure which the shortened working day gives them.

George Eastman has given tens of millions to further musical education and the appreciation of good music. He says, rightly, that the man or woman who gets his highest pleasure from producing or listening to music is a much happier as well as a much more useful citizen than the one who does not know what to do with his spare time.

DRINK

Sir Phillip Gibbs, most capable of British journalists, reports that drinking is becoming unfashionable in good society in England and diminishing among the working class.

England has no prohibition law. We had no national prohibition law in America before the war, yet it was noticeable that drinking was falling off everywhere. After prohibition was enacted it became fashionable to patronize bootleggers as a gesture of defiance.

Now these defiant ones are not getting the kick out of their attitude which they got at first, and drinking seems definitely on the wane again. Good society no longer looks tolerantly on drunkenness. Flask-toting is rightly regarded as childish.

SHOES

A nationally-distributed brand of shoes sells for $4 a pair. The man at the head of the business failed in 1921. He started up again on the modern plan of quantity production, low overhead and high wages. His lowest-paid worker gets $5 a day, enough to buy a pair of the shoes he helps make and have a dollar left over.

A German shoe manufacturer visited this man's plant. The German makes a shoe which retails at 18 marks—$4.50. He pays his workmen six marks, $1.50 a day. A man has to work half a week to earn a pair of shoes.

"Our country and the rest of Europe will never get ahead until we learn that the workers must be our chief consumers, and must earn enough to buy the goods they make," said the German.

He had discovered the secret of American prosperity.

TITLES

Former members of the Russian nobility are scattered over the world. Some stand the test of poverty, many wilt under it, proving nothing except that people are much alike, titled or not.

In New York a grand duke or two live without working by selling "Imperial Orders" to gullible Americans. The buyer gets the right to wear a red ribbon across his shirt-front and pretend to be somebody. Harmless enough, but silly.

G. G. Foster Has Been Factor in Canyon's Growth

Many people who have lived in West Texas towns for a long time say they have seen the country grow. G. G. Foster, who has lived in or near Canyon since 1900, has helped Canyon grow.

Coming from Greenville, he became principal of the Canyon school, at the same time acquiring some ranch interests. Soon he was appointed county surveyor, and he has held this position in connection with other work ever since, except for two years; for the past ten years he has been a licensed state land surveyor.

Always interested in the church to which he belonged, Mr. Foster has been identified with the Methodist church since the days when it owned no building, but met in joint services with other denominations at the Randall County Court house, then a frame building. Next the church was a one-room structure; later two rooms were added, then the church was moved to a site nearer the center of town, and another two rooms added to take care of the growing congregation, the Sunday school becoming very large with the location of the State Teachers College at Canyon in 1919. In 1924, the old frame church was abandoned, and under the leadership of Rev. M. M. Beavers, a new brick edifice was erected. It has all the facilities that the first crude building lacked, including Sunday school rooms, pastor's study, a basement fitted for social gatherings, a pipe organ and Epworth League rooms. Mr. Foster has had a real part in all this change for he has been a member of the board of stewards since 1912, about the time that the great growth began.

A Variety of Interests
By 1914, the public schools of Canyon were beginning to face a period of rapid growth and crowding which has continued ever since. It was at this time that G. G. Foster became a member of the school board, and for twelve years he remained on it, eleven years of that time as its presiding officer. During that same period he was a member of the City Council for four years, besides attending to his own growing business interests. Insurance and real estate have made his life a busy one since 1920, and at present Mr. Foster is secretary and treasurer of the Federal Farm Loan Association.

Although he has been in Canyon for enough years to be counted as an "old-timer" and to know hundreds of people all over the Plains area, George Foster has no notion of retiring, or of doing less for his community, and it is a safe prediction that as long as he lives he will be actively identified with the Chamber of Commerce, the church, the schools, and all other phases of the life of the community which make his home town a good one in which to live.

His careful consideration of problems, his willingness to look generously at the other man's point of view will make his advice valuable to young business people in the future as it has been on many occasions in the past.

If you can't have indigestion without being a pessimist, then don't get indigestion.

County Agent Says Snow and Cold Is Aid to Winter Wheat

The cold weather and snow of last week which blanketed the entire Panhandle of Texas, will be of material aid to the wheat of this section according to the opinion of W. H. Upchurch, county demonstration agent.

The cold weather preceding the snow together with the moisture from the snow has been described as ideal for wheat. The growth of the wheat on top of the ground has been stopped to a certain extent while the cold has forced the roots to get a greater growth.

Mr. Upchurch stated that when short yields in wheat were experienced always followed a warm winter as a rule. Shallow rooted wheat is responsible for short yields of wheat more than lack of moisture in the spring, according to the agent.

Cold damp weather is needed to force the growth of the wheat underground thereby insuring a deep rooting.

Amarillo Woman Discouraged By Many Failures

Mrs. Allred Had Suffered for Four Years—is Grateful to Orgatone.

"If there was no other way for me to get Orgatone, I would actually walk ten miles rather than be without it," said Mrs. Lee Allred, who lives at Wildorado, Texas, while in the City Drug Store, Amarillo.

"I suffered for four years," continued Mrs. Allred, "and during that time I spent a good many hundreds of dollars trying to find a medicine or treatment that would overcome my troubles, but I never got any relief until I commenced to take Orgatone. My stomach was in an awful condition and every time I ate anything I would suffer for hours afterward. Sometimes I would have cramping spells and then I would often suffer on account of gas forming from sour, undigested food. I would have awful headaches, too, and would frequently get so dizzy that I would either have to sit down or lie down to keep from falling. My appetite was so poor that I hardly ate enough to keep me alive and I got so thin and weak that I was hardly able to get around at all. I also suffered a great deal from nervousness and never got a goodnight's sleep. I finally got in such a run down, worn out condition that I just had to give up trying to do any of my work. In fact, I was completely over my condition and gave up all hope of ever getting better."

"I told my husband that I didn't think it was of any use to spend any more money for medicine, but he said, 'No, you mustn't give up, for as long as there is life there is hope.' Well I noticed Orgatone being advertised then, and I thought I would see if that would do me any good, and before I had finished my first bottle I could see that I was mending right along. My appetite is as good now as it ever was, and I can eat just anything I want without suffering agonies afterward. I have taken two bottles of Orgatone so far and my health is far better than it has been for over four years. My stomach troubles have disappeared, and my nerves are in such fine condition that I drop off to sleep as soon as I go to bed every night, and I hardly ever wake up until I am called in the mornings. I haven't had a headache or one of those dizzy spells since I finished my first bottle of Orgatone and am so well and strong in every way that I now do all my house work. I don't believe there is a medicine in the world that equals Orgatone, and I just can't find words to express how grateful I am for the great good it has done me, and I will praise this wonderful medicine as long as I live."

Genuine Orgatone is manufactured by one of the world's largest laboratories and is not a so-called secret or patent remedy, but a new scientific bile treatment and is sold in Canyon by the Jarrett Drug Co.

CERTAINTY OF PUNISHMENT DETERS CRIME

Crime has its place in the front row of American life today.

This is evidenced by the fact that gang warfare forms the basis of the plots in many current "talkies" and "movies," where not so long ago historical incidents and frontier episodes were the basis of stirring scenes around which the play revolved.

"Big business crime" has created a new vocabulary which is becoming a part of our daily word usage as was evidenced during recent tariff hearings when interrogators expressed themselves in words taken from the latest vernacular of gangland. The more important crime becomes as a big business, the more difficult it is to control.

Not the severity of punishment but the certainty is the best deterrent for crime, declares E. Roy Calvert, crime statistician of England. England's greater success in dealing with its crime problem is largely due, he says, to the success of the police and courts in bringing a greater number of law-breakers to conviction.

Professors and policemen who recently met in Chicago for a conference on crime and traffic and how to control both brought out one basic fact, namely, that we have inadequate crime and traffic records from which to draw conclusions and formulate constructive programs for betterment.

Apparently we do not need more laws but we do need better records of results obtained under our present laws, better enforcement of present laws, and as Mr. Calvert says, greater certainty of punishment under existing laws as a crime deterrent.

FIRE INSPECTOR NEEDED

Many homes, far from being the safe havens their occupants think them, are potential furnaces in imminent danger of destruction by fire.

The sense of danger is deadened by living in company with the most obvious fire hazards. A pile of rags or refuse lies unattended in a corner; matches and cigarettes are flipped carelessly about; the electrician is not called to attend old or faulty wiring; a poor chimney is allowed to go uncorrected—thousands of American homes have many such risks which could be removed with but little effort and expense.

As a solution to this problem, periodical inspections by experts are recommended by the National Board of Fire Underwriters and other authorities. The attention of an outsider with engineering knowledge is often required to make a danger evident to the home owner, and may be the means of preventing a costly blaze.

In some cities ordinances are in effect imposing penalties for non-observance of fire prevention recommendations. It has been proven that such procedure bears fine fruit. In one city, a decrease in home fires of 51 per cent was effected in seven years, due to a campaign of inspections by the safety council.

Every locality should require fire inspections and enforce adequate fire laws. The general public, if wise, will welcome such procedure, in the knowledge that it will result in greater security for life and property.

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless, Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

Mr. Johnson is very enthusiastic over the Chinese Elm, and is confident of its future in making the Plains beautiful.

College Plans Extension Work After Holidays

West Texas State Teachers College, priding itself on being a cultural as well as educational center of the Panhandle, is planning to extend the radius of its lycium and extension service materially during the next two scholastic terms.

One of the most pretentious of its projects will be survey and scoring of all rural schools in Randall county, immediately after the Christmas holidays.

The lycium and extension service of the college has gained such wide favor among outlying communities of the Panhandle during the last few years that it has become one of the most important phases of student and faculty extra-curricula activities of the institution.

Through the service, speakers for special community projects, such as consolidation drives, bond issue campaigns, chamber of commerce campaigns and other programs are furnished to any community at cost. Entertainment programs arranged by public speaking and music students, are given for schools ranging in size from two-teacher to 50 and 75 teacher systems. The programs include dramatic readings, lectures, concerts, violin and piano recitals and plays.

Upon request of the schools, members of the college faculty will give intelligence tests and special examination to pupils. Preholiday tests were given by F. R. Phillips, director of the agricultural department, to more than a dozen rural school student bodies last week.

Through a consultative service, conducted by the teacher training department, teachers of any schools of the section are given advice in planning and developing schools. The manual training department is frequently called on to plan building programs in rural communities, to sketch and develop playgrounds. A department of the training school answers countless inquiries each term relative to rural school problems, these including a range of subjects from fitting a small library to quelling the school cut-up, and heating arrangements.

A 12 weeks' testing service course for rural teachers, conducted in Potter county with extreme success last year, is just being completed in Randall county this year, and, if expenses can be cared for, the service will be extended as far as the demand next year. Through the testing courses, teachers are taught to weigh their own schools by standard measurements, and grade them accordingly. They meet at the county seat each Saturday, bringing to the class as subjects, problems of their own classrooms. They survey their own schools as to intelligence showing of their pupils, heating arrangement, of the rooms, sanitary equipment, library and playground facilities, arrangement of desks, light and so on.

This phase of rural extension is directed by Dr. Albert Barnett, rural school specialist. Club service, another department of the college activity has been extended to more than 500 organizations during the last few years. Through the department, the college furnishes speakers and courses of study to women's clubs, parent-teacher associations and men's luncheon clubs.

Elaborate one-year courses of study in Texas history and lore, sociology, literature or government problems are among the women's club programs outlined.

College Plans Extension Work After Holidays

West Texas State Teachers College, priding itself on being a cultural as well as educational center of the Panhandle, is planning to extend the radius of its lyceum and extension service materially during the next two scholastic terms.

One of the most pretentious of its projects will be survey and scoring of all rural schools in Randall county, immediately after the Christmas holidays.

The lyceum and extension service of the college has gained such wide favor among outlying communities of the Panhandle during the last few years that it has become one of the most important phases of student and faculty extra-curricular activities of the institution.

Through the service, speakers for special community projects, such as consolidation drives, bond issue campaigns, chamber of commerce campaigns and other programs are furnished to any community at cost. Entertainment programs arranged by public speaking and music students, are given for schools ranging in size from two-teacher to 50 and 75 teacher systems. The programs include dramatic readings, lectures, concerts, violin and piano recitals and plays.

Upon request of the schools, members of the college faculty will give intelligence tests and special examination to pupils. Preholiday tests were given by F. R. Phillips, director of the agricultural department, to more than a dozen rural school student bodies last week.

Through a consultative service, conducted by the teacher training department, teachers of any schools of the section are given advice in planning and developing schools. The manual training department is frequently called on to plan building programs in rural communities, to sketch and develop playgrounds. A department of the training school answers countless inquiries each term relative to rural school problems, these including a range of subjects from fitting a small library to quelling the school cut-up, and heating arrangements.

A 12 weeks' testing service course for rural teachers, conducted in Potter county with extreme success last year, is just being completed in Randall county this year, and, if expenses can be cared for, the service will be extended as far as the demand next year. Through the testing courses, teachers are taught to weigh their own schools by standard measurements, and grade them accordingly. They meet at the county seat each Saturday, bringing to the class as subjects, problems of their own classrooms. They survey their own schools as to intelligence showing of their pupils, heating arrangement, of the rooms, sanitary equipment, library and playground facilities, arrangement of desks, light and so on.

This phase of rural extension is directed by Dr. Albert Barnett, rural school specialist.

Club service, another department of the college activity has been extended to more than 500 organizations during the last few years. Through the department, the college furnishes speakers and courses of study to women's clubs, parent-teacher associations and men's luncheon clubs.

Elaborate one-year courses of study in Texas history and lore, sociology, literature or government problems are among the women's club programs outlined.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By Edson R. Waite
Shawnee, Okla.

Carle D. Brown, National Advertising manager of the Salt Lake Tribune, says:

That national distribution has been accomplished by many manufacturers in a few months with newspaper national advertising that would have taken years under the older system.

The newspaper organizations have become "merchandise-minded" and of themselves promote new distributor connections and introduce new merchandise in their retail and wholesale trade areas in short periods of time. This rapid action is impossible with any other medium and is a distinct advantage to the national advertiser, who, alone, could not always accomplish it efficiently at the psychological moment when merchandise is particularly seasonable.

The national advertiser can pick his particularly desirable markets with newspaper advertising, but has no choice in magazines of national circulation and with them must pay for a thin coverage of the entire country.

The exigencies and emergencies of competition and other conditions that may vary in different sections of the country can be overcome by quick action in the markets affected, by using newspapers in these markets, without the expense of advertising in other markets where conditions are satisfactory and normal.

The manufacturer who has not learned how to use the machinery of newspaper merchandising service provided for national advertisers has missed something which has made larger volume in old markets and distribution in new territory for his competitors.

National newspaper advertising is a mighty productive force and, when coupled with intelligent promotion and merchandising offered by the dominating newspaper in a market, a most convenient, economical sales-power.

THOUGHTS

By Bruce Barton

One of the most interesting men in the United States is a nerve specialist whom I am fortunate enough to count among my friends. The other day he was called upon to testify in the case of a woman who had been paralyzed by falling from a street car.

She could not move an arm or a leg. Needles thrust into the flesh produced no pain, and the other customary tests proved to the satisfaction of the jurors that paralysis was complete.

She was awarded heavy damages in spite of the testimony of my friend who was convinced that her condition was entirely the result of her own thinking. He took interest enough in the case to follow it up, and discovered that two days after the award of damages the woman had made a complete recovery.

"You will say she was faking," he said in telling the story. "Was she? I say to you that with all my knowledge of the nervous system, I could not produce in myself such a condition. You couldn't do it. The woman herself could not do it again. But the combination of the shock and the thought was sufficient. She knew she was paralyzed, and so she was."

"I saw the same sort of thing again and again in the war," he continued. "There was a soldier who used to have an epileptic fit regularly at the stroke of seven every evening. That was the hour when the heavy shelling began, but his fits lasted long after the war was over and withstood all treatment. I cured him finally by a positive counter-suggestion. I said to him: 'There is no form of epilepsy like this. I have lived for years among epileptics and I know. You thought yourself into this condition; you can think yourself out of it.'"

If a single thought is powerful enough to paralyze an arm or make a man epileptic what are our thoughts—good or bad—doing to us every day?

"To what base uses we put this ineffable intellect!" Emerson exclaimed. "To reading all day murders and train accidents, to choosing patterns for waistcoats and scarfs."

These are petty thoughts that fritter away power. What about the destructive thoughts—jealousy, envy, hatred, fear?

By a change of thought the yeomen of England became the unconquerable army of Cromwell. By a change of thought a handful of fishermen of Palestine transformed human history.

Because she "stirred people up to think who had never taken it into their head to think before," Madame de Staël was banished from France by Napoleon. He could banish her, but he could not stop her thinking. It broke him. It can break or make us all.

Wayside Items

An excellent Christmas sermon by Rev. J. R. Plant Sunday morning, also preaching at night. B. Y. P. U. had a good session, very fair congregation.

Wayside plans to have a Christmas tree Tuesday night at the school house. A large crowd is expected. This is an old-age custom, we fear is being relegated to the background with up-to-date communities, which we regret to see. Many of us remember the Christmas trees of our childhood, pleasant memories and with the little folks enjoy them still.

Calm and cold has marked the weather for some days past. Water became distressingly scarce. Glad to report Sunday's breezes eased things up quite a bit.

Mrs. Floyd Adams with Annette, Polly and Mackie Allgood, left Saturday to spend the holidays with relatives in Fort Worth.

Myles and Melton McGehee and Noble Gillham from Lubbock have reached Wayside for the holidays.

W. I. Lane and Joyce made a trip to Amarillo Saturday. J. C. Payne and wife same day. M. L. McGehee and wife went Monday.

Colds are quite common. Ewing McGehee, Mrs. Kenneth Knox and babe all sick with colds.

We may not have a white Christmas. The four inch snow of last Thursday night will be partly visible. Looks now like we might have good weather.

Merry Christmas and Happy New Year to All.

Hoovercrats Sannot Be Barred in Texas

Texas election laws prohibit the state Democratic executive committee from barring Hoovercrats as candidates in the primaries in 1930, as has recently been done in Alabama.

This was the assertion of Thomas B. Love, state senator, Hoover Democratic leader, and a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor next year, in commenting on the action in Alabama, which he characterized as "foolish."

Love quoted this sentence from chapter 67, general laws, first called session of the 40th legislature: "No person shall ever be denied the right to participate in a primary in this state because of former political views or affiliations."

He pointed out that the Wirtz bill, passed by the last regular session of the legislature, sought to repeal the provision and that Governor Moody vetoed it.

Murrell Buckner, Dallas county Democratic chairman, had the following comment on the Alabama political move: "As far as I'm concerned, if I were state chairman, I'd issue an invitation for the boys who voted for Hoover to come on home to the old roost where they belong. This talk about Raskob and Tammany is all rot."

Census Taking To Start on April 1

Coronado used in 1541 are shown in red on the map.

Border Artistic and Interesting
Not the least interesting feature of the map is its border. In it appear tepees and pueblos, and objects indigenous to the region shown on the map. On one side is shown an evolution of architecture in the Panhandle beginning with the tepee and closing with a modern house; on another side is shown the evolution of travel showing the Indian chief and cowboy with their horses, the prairie schooner and ending with the airplane of today; pen sketches of the West Texas State Teachers College Administration Building, and of Amarillo's Auditorium represent symbolically the development of education and civic pride in the entire region.

No map of the Panhandle of yesterday would be complete without prairie dogs, snakes, cacti and owls, so these also appear.

In spite of the great number of objects shown on the map, Miss Robinson has avoided any suggestion of crowding, so carefully has the whole been planned.

Map an A. A. U. W. Project
The pictorial map of the Panhandle had its origin last spring when the Canyon and Amarillo chapters of the American Association of University Women first considered making and selling road maps of the regions. Upon investigation it was found that this service was already well rendered by numerous commercial agencies, so the map which would be both artistic and of historical and cultural merit was determined upon.

The maps will be sold, orders for large numbers of them having already been received by both chapters of the A. A. U. W. It is understood that if the first printing does not supply the demand, another run will be printed later. It is supposed that a great number of the maps will be sent East to people who are interested in the old and colorful west, and copies will be placed in the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society, the Amarillo public library and other public places.

Since this is the first pictorial map of a region of great interest it will be welcomed by everybody who has watched the industrial and cultural development of North-west Texas.

the Canyon College through gifts. President Hill said that there were needs to fit the sizes of all purses, but that perhaps the first choice would be a building to house the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society. This was placed first on the list because such a building would be a source of satisfaction to a great many people who have helped to build this country, and would be an inspiration to the youth who can share the old days only thru the records and objects of the past which are saved for them. Such a building might be designated as a memorial to the donor or to someone he loved or to a group of pioneers.

Good old, Santa Claus. Gee, but I hope he comes to see me. Anyway I'll give you a Scotchman's Christmas present, "Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."

It is said that the only fellow who favors the return of long skirts is the man who hides behind his wife's skirt. Well, here and now is an open statement from the Office Loafer that if the long skirts increase accordingly in price, that we're agin' 'em from now 'til—

It just seems like the snow and Santa Claus can't get their dates straight and both come at the same time.

The Christmas Decorations which resulted from the contest conducted by the Chamber of Commerce brought about a lot of comment and they were sure pretty.

The town was sure lit up last night. Now we don't mean the people were but the lights over town, all colors and shapes were lit up and looked real beautiful.

Don't know very much this week as the madam is at home seeing her ma, who is in turn my mother-in-law. Guess I'm being watched this week. And I guess I'll have to give an account of every minute's time when I meet up with my mother-in-law.

My Christmas wish to the mother-in-law would sure be merry for me but I'm not speaking further.

Merry Christmas, Happy New Year. All is Well, and So's your old man.

See you next year.

Louis Hinders states that he is well pleased with Randall county as a cotton raising section. His experiment here has been as satisfactory as in Hall county from which place he moved.

Mr. Hinders planted six acres this year, but the rabbits got one acre. The seed was planted May 28th, but there was not enough rain to sprout the weed seed until August. He plowed the cotton only once. He picked 1410 pounds of cotton, which made 610 pounds of lint. He has two more bales of bolls.

building which would carry the name of a Panhandle citizen and serve college boys and girls for years to come was another suggestion.

But smaller gifts frequently add much to the facility and comfort of every day life. Public spirited citizens of the Panhandle could build themselves into the coming generations by making possible the erection of concrete tennis courts, or an out-of-doors swimming pool, or a golf course or even a whole recreation field. Such a project would be a fitting memorial for a youth who "went west" during the World War.

Even the college buffaloes, mute reminders of a day that will never return, might be benefited by a gift from someone whose heart is in the Panhandle, for a fence which will cost at least $500 if it is to be safe, is needed in order to give them sufficient range, and to place them where they can be seen by thousands of visitors who come to this region each year.

To those who want to invest directly in boys and girls, there is no better way than that of creating loan and scholarship funds, which revolve and whose service continues to grow through the years.

Eastern colleges, located in regions no more generous than the Panhandle, but where philanthropy has become the custom receive gifts and bequests almost monthly. "Such an investment in public welfare can be made here with equal safety and satisfaction" said President Hill, "and yield rich returns in a country that is still young and striving."
